ABSTRACT

The main purpose of this study is to identify the potentials of mosque as tourist attraction place in Malaysia. This study uses literature and empirical study for two mosques from outside the world and in Malaysia that are tourist attraction spots. In this study, there are questions about should mosque become a tourist attraction place and the factors that make a mosque popular among the tourists by giving some good examples of mosque. This study can make the public as well as the officials aware of the tourism potentials of the mosque in Malaysia.

KEY WORDS: Mosque, Tourist, Tourist Attraction, Islamic Tourism, Travel, Religious Tourism, Tourism

INTRODUCTION

Islam is the world’s fastest growing and one of the major religions. According to the 2015 Pew research Center, the Muslims will grow more than twice as fast as the overall world population between 2010 and 2050 and, in the second half of this century, will likely surpass Christians as the world’s largest religious group. Graph 1 demonstrates the percentage of estimated change in population size, 2010-2050.

Malaysia, which have the predominantly Muslims populations are one the countries that dominate Muslim tourism. Malaysia benefited from the shift in the Muslim tourist flows because this country tend to more easily satisfy the Muslims specific needs in customs and religious practice (Dabrowska, K., 2010). Its influence extends to the domain of tourism where it can help to determine demand for travel among Muslims and the direction of their domestic and international tourist flows. Throughout the Muslim world many mosques have become one of the attraction for the tourists to visit the country. Mosques are known for their beautiful and often ground breaking architecture (Utaberta, N., et al., 2015). Many tourists not only travel for their beliefs or spiritual values but also for recreational, educational and cultural purposes. Famous Islamic mosque architecture (e.g. Taj Mahal and the Ottoman Palaces) are among the most appealing attractions in the Muslim world (Timothy, D. and D. Olsen, 2006). From this, to define the potentials of mosques in Malaysia to become a tourist spot that attract a large number of tourists from all over the world.

2. Literature Review:

Mosque as a tourist attraction place: issues and justifications:

In the Muslim world, Islamic tourism ideas have been widely discussed. The ideas of Islamic tourism have been suggested and categorized into three main concepts which are: (1) Economic, (2) Cultural, and (3) Religious-conservative concepts.

The economic concept for Islamic tourism considers the Muslim countries as being part of the emerging tourist markets of the future with major economic potential for growth (Ma, Y.-T. and A. Crestan, 2007). When mosque become a tourist attraction place, it will bring in large amounts of foreign exchange as the Muslim tourism is an important instrument of economic development. Tourism provides opportunities for employment and development of backward areas as it is a source for the development of hotel industry and also transportation (Reegan, O., 2015).

The cultural concept for Islamic tourism is the inclusion of Islamic religious-cultural sites in tourism programs to protect this culture and to not ignore cultural heritage during the process of cultural globalization (Ma, Y.-T. and A. Crestan, 2007). As the economic concept, this approach encourages a re-orientation towards more Islamic historical, religious, and cultural sites instead of depending on “western-cultural” loaded tour destinations. Finally, the religious-conservative concept for Islamic tourism attempts to merge elements of the extremely conservative Islamic lifestyle with the modern tourism industry, which could indeed present new tourism options, spaces, and spheres. Tourism contributes much for improvement of social, political understanding and cultural exchange (Tajuddin, M., et al., 2007). Tourism can foster integration with the local community and lifestyle. World tourism contributes a lot for the development of international peace and amity while the domestic tourism brings national integration (Reegan, O., 2015). When mosque become tourist attraction place, visitors will come from around the world and foster the integration among the local community and the tourist. Tourists can experience different kind of lifestyles and exchange knowledge among each other. Hence, mosque tourism can bring up the popularity of the country too (Rasdi, M.T.M. and N. Utaberta, 2010).

In United States, most of the mosque are welcome the non-Muslims as a sign of openness to the rest of the community as well as to encourage conversions to Islam (Bagby, I., et al., 2001). Mosque is one of the place to help the spread of Islam. Mosque become a tourist attraction place can help tourists to have more understanding about Islam and encourage the conversions to Islam.

However, many Muslims are highly worries about the negative influences of tourism (Timothy, D. and D. Olsen, 2006). A tourist attraction places will typically bring negative social impacts like drugs, alcohol consumption, gambling, immodest dress and so on which are all forbidden by Islamic law (Timothy, D. and D. Olsen, 2006; Bagby, I., et al., 2001). Tourists are often ignorant of local mores and take photographs of local people, which is offensive to many Muslims.
Potential of mosque being an attraction among tourists:

Islamic architecture changes because of features of each period and experienced different ways. These features were taken from interests of public as well as kings in order to establish their positions, religious and climatological factors, etc.

Many mosques have become tourist attractions throughout the Muslim world and the mosques are normally known for their gorgeous and often ground breaking architecture [9].

There are few features of tourist attractor for religious tourism place like mosque. One of the common feature will be the holiness ([Josan, I., 2009]). "The term “holy place” is applied to a specific place where there is a divine association with it. The place is holy because at a particular time, it was the place of a divine revelation. Generally, regardless of the religion, the holy places constitute a powerful point of tourist attraction, combining the achievement of certain spiritual satisfactions with the discovery of new places, habits etc. Annually, millions of people head that way, and the rules set for the people in order to respect their holiness, are thoroughly applied” (Josan, I., 2009).

Another features tourist attractor for mosque are the religious edifices. Mosques are structure built by men in which one can worship God. Other than the designation, the religious edifices represent a special tourist attraction by their architecture, work of art under the form of paintings and sculptures. Aesthetic value of mosque is normally portrayed by the highest degree of motifs and ornamentation. Aesthetic and beauty of mosque interior can fulfil the certainty, variety, significance and love/connection needs for human beings: that is inside a beautiful ambience (Othman, R and Z.J. Zainal-Abidin, 2011). "Like churches in Christian faith, Mosques play the same part in Muslim life. For example, one of the most attractive mosques, Mesquita (the mosque-cathedral) of Cordoba has a less spectacular exterior, but the interior displays a fairy tale-like beauty. It has 865 columns and arches in the shape of horseshoe which support a second row of arches. In the wall opposite of the entrance, oriented towards Mecca, is the Saint of Saints, an octagonal alcove for prayers. A beautiful work of art is the Bibi-Khanym Mosque (the Mosque of the Mother-in-Law) in Samarkand (Uzbekistan), raised by Timur Lenk in the memory of his wife’s mother. The mosque houses a hall of prayers whose 400 cupolas were supported by marble columns, The Umayyad Mosque in Damascus, built in the 8th century houses under its cupola the head of St. John the Baptist, worshipped by both by Christians and Muslims (the prophet Yahua). The Al-Aqsa Mosque in Jerusalem means “the Farthest Mosque” from Mecca where the prophet Muhammad travelled.Sanaa – the capital of Yemen – is a also a site of religious rituals, here being 100 mosques today, of which the most known is Al-Habir (the Great Mosque). The courtyard of the Badshahi Mosque (Lahore), raised in the 18th century can house 60.000 people. Intended as a replica to Hagia Sophia in Istanbul, the Blue Mosque is the only one of the kind to have six minarets instead of four, and its interior is covered with faience, most of it in blue.” [10]

These are among the factors that make a mosque popular among the tourist.

Literature survey on selected cases:

Blue mosque:

One of the most important countries in the world for international tourism is Turkey according to the data from the World Tourism Organization (UNWTA, 2011). In Istanbul, there are approximately 444 mosques and Sultan Ahmet Mosque (Figure 1) are one of the most visited places by tourist.

Fig. 2: Exterior look of Blue mosque in Istanbul, Turkey
The Sultan Ahmet Mosque is also commonly known as the Blue Mosque today. The mosque get its nickname because of the tens of thousands of iznik blue tiles adorning the interior wall. The mosque is built between 1606 and 1616 by Sultan Ahmed I.

This beautiful mosque are open to all, Muslim and non-muslim, Turk and foreigner, young and old. In the mosque, there are separate area for non-Muslim visitors so that distraction of worshippers is minimized.

Because of the intense crowds and the fact that the Sultan Ahmet is a working mosque its closed to non-worshippers for 45 minutes before the call to prayer, 30 minutes afterwards, and all morning on Friday (until 14:30/2:30pm), the Muslim holy day. Non-Muslim visitors must enter by the door for tourist entrance (Figure 2).

At the Blue Mosque’s entrance for tourists, visitors were first asked to take off their shoes and put them into plastic bags provided for the purpose. As the tourists went on towards the door leading to the mosque’s main prayer room, officials will watched to see who was inappropriately dressed.

A plastic mannequin in the walkway, dressed in a robe and a headscarf, served as a model of how visitors should dress. Tourist should wear modest, conservative clothing which exposes a minimum of flesh. No shorts or sleeveless shirts on either men or women. The mosque may provide robes to wear too.

Jumeirah Mosque:

Jumeirah mosque (Figure 3) is a dominant landmark of Dubai city, United Arab Emirates (UAE) which was built in the medieval Fatimid tradition with modern materials, the stone structure is a tribute to contemporary Islamic architecture. It is one of the three mosque in the UAE that is allow non-Muslim to visit.

Fig. 4: Exterior look of Jumeirah Mosque located in Dubai city, UAE.
This mosque provides a rare opportunity to bridge the gap between hosts and guests by offering visitors a glimpse of UAE nationals’ religion, customs and way of life via a mosque visit. Giving an opportunity to the non-Muslims tourist to understand the local religion, culture and tradition.

Considered to be one of the most attractive mosques in Dubai, the Sheikh Mohammed Centre for Cultural Understanding organizes visits to the Jumeirah Mosque for non-Muslims, aimed at promoting cultural understanding and first-hand experience as an insight to the Islamic religion. The cultural understanding are part of its Policy which is “Open Doors, Open Minds”. The mosque is designed to bring different nationalities together.

The tour, which is as much fact-finding as sight-seeing, lasts 1½ hours and there’s a Q&A session at the end are conduct every Saturday, Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday at 10am. The tourists and residents who gather outside the ornate Jumeirah Mosque will be conducted tour of the Mosque and a better understanding of Islam.

Same like other mosque, ladies need to be covered with long skirts or trousers, long sleeves, hat or scarf for the head. For the gentlemen, they need to wear trousers, T-shirt or shirt and not a vest. Visitors need to take off their shoes before entering the mosque (Figure 4).

3.0 Case Study within Malaysia:
3.1 Putra Mosque:
Putra Mosque (Figure 5) or most commonly known as the Pink Mosque is the main mosque of Putrajaya located west of Putra Square. It is constructed in year 1997 and said to have a capacity 15,000 worshippers. The minaret stands 116-meters and claims to be the tallest in Southeast Asia. The mosque is arguably its most distinctive landmark and one of the most modern mosques in the world. This astonishing glowing pink color Mosque is also a major tourist attraction in Putrajaya for Muslims and non-Muslims.

Female visitors are required to put on pink robes as they enter (Figure 5). When entering the prayer hall, women visitors will need to cover their heads with the scarves provided.

Fig. 6: Female visitors in pink robes.
3.2 Tuanku Mizan Zainal Abidin Mosque:

The Tuanku Mizan Zainal Abidin Mosque also commonly known as Iron Mosque completed in year 2009 (Figure 7). It is located in Putrajaya and said to have a capacity of 20,000 worshippers. The façade of the mosque is made from 4,300 m² of stainless steel spiral mesh that protects worshippers against drafts at the same time letting the cooling wind penetrate the whole building as a pleasant flow. A natural air-conditioning system features in the mosque. The mosque is a masterpiece in unique design with the balance between traditional design and modernism. It’s designated as a tourist attraction places and the management have been urged not to restrict access to Muslim alone. This Mosque opened its door to Muslims and non-Muslims throughout the world.

Islam maintains the mosque as the inside for the Muslims to love Allah. As Allah has given us clear rules on the best way to deal with our life, the mosque additionally ought to be utilized to the greatest limit where we can tie the quality of the ummah and enhance their life through any exercises sorted out by the mosque. Through the headway of innovation, we ought to utilize it for the sole purpose of flourishing the muslims youth.

Based on the above writings, the involvement of youth in the mosques is still very small. However, the youth should be actively involves in the mosques as youth in King Fahad Mosques and Masjid Al Barakah. With a proper activities and involving more youth in the mosque committee, more or less it can attract others youth to join and become part of mosque committee as stated by Raeisian,Gh., Badreh, M.(2013). Other than that, Qari Muhammad Asim also stated that the youngsters have altogether different needs with elderly with engagement with the mosques. Lastly, as stated by Yassir Fazaqa, youth feel like their presence is not being appreciated and doesn’t feel the belonging when they are in the mosque.

Discussion:

Not to deny that Putra Mosque’s is most distinctive landmark in Putrajaya with a beautiful scenic view of the lake. The outlook of the mosque is unique and unusual consists of architectural styles of Malaysia, Persian and Arab-Islamic with combination of traditional intricate design motifs that employing local and foreign craftsmanship.

The second principal mosque in Putrajaya after the Putra Mosque is the Tuanku Mizan Zainal Abidin Mosque. Compare to the Putra Mosque, the exterior look of this mosque is well balance of modernism and tradition design that cover by stainless steel iron. From the exterior to the interior look of the Malaysia’s mosques, it is compatible with the Mosques outside the world.

Since the mosques are open to the Muslims and non-Muslims. There are existing potentials of the mosque to become a tourist attraction place in Malaysia. However, to attract the tourist from local and foreigner, Malaysia still needs to put in more effort in this field. The government and the media play an important roles to promote the mosque as tourist attraction place and brings up to the international level.

Conclusion:

As the Islam is the world’s fastest growing and one of the major religions (Pew Research Center, 2015). More mosque will be built to accommodate the large amount of worshipers and become a new tourism destination in the world.

Since Malaysia, which have the predominantly Muslims populations and tourism is second largest income generating sector of Malaysia. Tourism industry effects positively on the Malaysian economy for increasing foreign exchange earnings, and employment opportunities.

Mosque in Malaysia will plays an important role to encourage tourism. Hence, the public and the officials should be aware of the potentials of mosque as a tourist attraction place in Malaysia.
